About the House

Tucked between a Gothic church and a 14th-century Baroque convent, this 18th-century mansion has been reinterpreted into a space that feels both grounded in history and unmistakably of the present.

Flooded with natural light, the house unfolds with a sense of openness and warmth. Minimalist lines, refined materials and artisanal details shape its 36 rooms—each conceived as a private sanctuary that reflects Palma's cultural depth without excess or distraction. Here, the city is not shut out, but gently filtered.

The Spirit of the Place

Sant Jaume balances two seemingly opposite energies: the vibrancy of Palma's artistic life and the serenity of a true hideaway. Cobblestone streets and galleries lie just beyond the door, while inside, time softens. It is a place to retreat without retreating from the city itself.

A Place to Slow Down

Art forms the quiet backbone of the experience. A dramatic 12-metre, site-specific sculpture by Robert Ferrer i Martorell anchors the central atrium, setting the tone for an in-house collection featuring contemporary artists such as Estefanía Pomar, Carlos Irijalba, Jordi Alcaraz, and Victoria Masdeu. Subtle, narrative works — often inspired by everyday life and iconic corners of Palma — create an intimate dialogue between guest and city.

Sanctuary & Longevity

Above it all, the rooftop becomes a living room under the sky. Surrounded by greenery, with a plunge pool, sun loungers and a softly social atmosphere, it offers panoramic views over Palma's rooftops and towers. A place for morning stillness, afternoon light, or an evening cocktail as the city cools.

Sant Jaume is for those who value design with restraint, culture with substance, and the rare luxury of calm—right in the heart of the city.
